

Can We Plan the Creative Knowledge City?

Editors:

Caroline Chapain, Chris Collinge and Peter Lee, University of Birmingham and Sako Musterd, University of Amsterdam

Built Environment

Volume 35, number 2, 2009

Reflecting the differing approaches across Western and Eastern Europe, the contributors to this issue of Built Environment explore the pathways towards creative and/or knowledge cities and discuss the implications for such cities in terms of social inclusion and planning policies – issues which are of critical importance in the face of world economic recession.
